MARC LÜDERS

The œuvre of Marc Lüders stands out through a subtle break-in of painting into the pictorial space of the photograph. Besides the painted floating objects he integrates topographically dis-located, realistic figures into the anonymous, urban landscape or symbolically charged natural environment of his photopictures. In a disconcerting manner, they cease to detach totally in their transparency from their surroundings. By generating this peculiar illusionary world, he points out to the torrent of manipulated media images that wash around our everyday lives simulating a ostensibly transparent reality, E.g. his series of works East Side Gallery from 2007 where he places fictional painted characters in front of this national „graffiti“-monument meanwhile in need of intense rehabilitation. With this, he draws attention to the imminent morbid present state of the ever-changing city of Berlin: no realistic pictorial world, but an imaginary, inter-media Lüders'ian “photopicture“.
